A Note From the Rabbi

Jason Holtz

Winter is Coming

For all of you Game of Thrones fans, you know that “Winter is Coming,” isn’t a good thing. In the show (and I presume in the books that I haven’t read), winter is about as bad as it gets. Well, I don’t think winter is quite as bad as the show makes it seem, but it’s not my favorite season either. In fact, I rank winter my fourth favorite season. I grew up in Central Florida, and I’m not really a big fan of cold weather. It did take me going to college in Syracuse, New York to figure that out though. Fortunately, Georgia doesn’t suffer too much from frigid weather. But, since winter is the least favorite of the seasons, in my book, that means fall isn’t too far behind. Despite the unusually hot weather that stretched into late September, I know that fall means “Winter is Coming,” so that makes it my third favorite season. Despite that, my favorite Jewish holiday is in the fall – Simchat Torah.

Simchat Torah closes an entire season full of Jewish holidays that begins with Rosh Hashanah, the New Year, continues on with Yom Kippur and then Sukkot. It’s not as popular as either of the High Holy Days, it’s certainly not as solemn.

The music is entirely joyful, the atmosphere is celebratory, and the mood is one of happiness and anticipation. To me, Simchat Torah is true to its name, it feels like a real Simchah, a joyous occasion. The celebration is in honor of finishing reading the Torah scroll over the previous year and then starting it again. Whereas Rosh Hashanah is the official start to the year, Simchat Torah is also a start. We read the very first Torah portion, the Creation of the World, on Simchat Torah. I can’t help but feel that it’s the Jewish way of saying – Ok, the year has begun, the world is new, what are you going to do? And with the party-like atmosphere, it makes me hopeful and optimistic.

This year, we’ll be celebrating Simchat Torah on Sunday, October 20th with a 5:30 pm picnic dinner in the sukkah and then a joyous service for all ages at 6:15 pm. Winter is coming, but there’s no better time than Simchat Torah!

Kol tuv, all the best,
Rabbi Jason Holtz

P.S. – By now, I am sure that you have heard that Sara Polikov will be stepping down at the end of the school year from her position as Director of the Mitzner Family Religious School. She has done a tremendous service to our kehillah, our school, and particularly our students. Thanks to her hard work, her caring attitude, and her vision, she has nurtured and developed an educational program that has greatly benefited us all. For that and more, I thank her!

News from the TKC President

A Timely Appeal

Rosh Hashanah is behind us. But our new year has just begun. I hope we don't lose track of the appeal I made at the start:

It seems appropriate that we should talk about time during this season, when we observe the beginning of a new cycle in the Jewish progression of years. Because our time in this world is finite. We can manage it, we can try to protect it. But we can never make more of it.

Money and time are related. If we work, we're simply trading our time for money. Then we can bank our time—literally—in the form of money. We may invest our time in deciding the best way to invest our money. But it will never give us more time.

And then there are those who invest their time to gain dividends far beyond money. These are the volunteers who invest their time in our kehillah. They give all of us some of their most precious possession, in hopes that it will yield outsized returns in a stronger community—not just for their children, but all our children, and grandchildren, and generations yet to come, in time far beyond their own.

These are the people, in our kehillah, who see that the roof is sound, that the doors are secure, that the sound system works. These are the voices that fill the sanctuary with song. The Torah table in our chapel was made, by hand, by a volunteer. The challah—the bread we share here each shabbat—is made, by hand, by a volunteer. Each one gives of their time—their most precious possession—so we can worship as we have for thousands of years, and our children can learn how it is done, and pass it along to those who will follow.

You may say volunteering makes them happy. And I'll bet you every person would find some measure of joy in performing gemulit chasadim—acts of loving kindness—in service of our kehillah. If we had the time.

But many of us are too busy investing our time in the work that provides for our family, and for our old age, and to even help keep the lights on here. We invest our time in our children, seeing they are first among the recipients of that most precious of commodities, as well as the time we spend getting them to and from the many activities we hope will prepare them for the world ahead.

And then, one day, the roof of the synagogue will leak. But, like all of us, the volunteer's time is finite. One day, the door won't close... again. How will we secure it? Where will we set the torah? Who will make the music? Who will bring the challah?

I would hope you could find an hour a month in the year ahead to help your kehillah. Bring the kids. Show them what a mitzvah looks like.

But even that might not be possible. We simply don't have the time to spare. In that case, take some of that time you banked—in the form of money—and please... consider a donation at some level to the general fund, the music fund, the education fund, to the Caring Core fund for those too ill to care for themselves. That money is your time as surely as if you spent one hour here each month of the year. Twelve hours. What's twelve hours of your time worth? As a donation to the kehillah—as with time itself—it is irreplaceable.

Whether you're committing to time in the year ahead, or sharing time you've already banked, there is no reason to expect anything less than full participation from everyone in our kehillah.

Jonathan Young

Congratulations, Kelly!

Kelly Figiel has grown up at TKC. After graduating high school, she immediately started teaching in the religious school. She has taught Hebrew, Kindergarten, 5th grade, and PreK. Kelly is also the JYG advisor. If you know her, then you know she gives everything her all. This year while working at the Kehillah and the Village Autism Clinic, Kelly has completed her graduate studies in Applied Behavior Analysis (ABA) and passed her boards to become a licensed Behavior Analyst. Mazel tov to Kelly!

News from the Mitzner Family Religious School

NEW HEBREW PROGRAM TAKES EFFECT

In our continuing effort of evaluating our programs in the Mitzner Family Religious school we have switched to the ability based approach of learning. Last spring, after research and discussions with Rabbi Holtz and Sara Polikov, we began this year.

All students will continue to supplement weekly Hebrew lessons with at-home practice. Teachers are using positive reinforcement to encourage homework completion.

In the ability based program, students need to pass the class requirements specified in Kitat B'reisheet before advancing to Kitat Gesher, and in Kitat Gesher before advancing to Kitat Etgar. All students are expected to master Kitat Gesher before enrolling in Kitat Mechinah. Students can move within a level at any time during the school year after an evaluation with me.

As has always been the case at TKC, recognizing that students in our Hebrew program will have different abilities, accommodations will be made for those students with special learning needs.

In addition, we have added many more hand on reinforcement games to the classes. Some are computer related, and others are movement oriented (picture balloons, races, bouncing balls, shaving cream and many other fun creative ways of learning). With just a few classes completed we have already seen a positive effect of this type of learning.

News from the Social Action Committee

Greetings from the Social Action Committee! Our Social Action Kickoff went famously well, and we brainstormed some really wonderful ideas for programs and social action-minded activities to benefit our TKC community and the greater Atlanta community at large. Please join us for future committee meetings as we create and proceed with our action plans. We would love your input and ideas!

The Old Roswell Cemetery Cleanup September 22nd was attended by our congregants, our very own Chai 5 students and our very active RAFTY teens. We did an amazing job and mitzvah cleaning cemetery headstones and debris in this old historic cemetery. The Roswell Historical Society always appreciates our efforts and sent out a warm thank you to TKC.

Please remember to drop off nonperishable food items for Project Isaiah during the High Holy Days. The large barrels will be readily visible in the TKC common areas on the first floor. The Atlanta Food Bank really appreciates our kind donations to support area food pantries for those in need.

The Pride Parade is Sunday, October 13th. Please watch for details as TKC always supports a team to walk in the parade. We would love to have you join us! In addition, the Zaban Paradies Couples Shelter will be opening its doors in October. We will be participating by providing periodic lunches and dinners to homeless couples residing at the shelter. Please consider assisting in our efforts to support these folks as they strive to become financially independent and non-homeless. Email notification will be sent when assistance with Zaban shelter activities is needed.

The Top 10 Reasons Parents Are Choosing Seeds of Wonder Journey School:

1. Your Child is Unique! Intentionally smaller class sizes mean each child receives the individualization and attention to help them grow and thrive. Our infant room is designed for up to 8 babies, and our preschool and PreK classrooms are capped at 12 children. Our ratios are much lower than other schools, too! Infants 1:4, Toddlers 1:5, 2's 1:6, 3's & 4's (PreK) 1:7.
2. Wonder-Filled Environment! Our natural playground (aka outdoor classroom) provides children a unique opportunity to interact with their environment - real grass, a bike track, a vertical garden, a stump jump, a natural sandbox, climbing equipment, water tables and more allow children an enriched outdoor experience. We go outside every day for at least an hour and a half, weather permitting, and we like to say anything children can do and learn inside, they can also experience outside!
3. Top-Notch Teachers! Our experienced, educated faculty are a hand-picked collaborative team! We recognize that loving, knowledgeable teachers are the cornerstone of our program, and your child deserves the best!
4. Location, Location, Location! Our location in historic Roswell makes us convenient for families in Roswell, and also in East Cobb, North Sandy Springs, Woodstock, Milton, Alpharetta and beyond! Not only that, as a part of the downtown Roswell community, we are able to offer our children the opportunity to explore their world through walking field trips!
5. Choices? We got 'em! We offer many flexible schedule options so you can customize your child's schedule! Preschool families can choose our extended day (8-5:30), school day (8-3:30), or core program (9-1) AND can choose 2, 3, or 5 days per week. In our infant room, our schedule choices are simple: extended day (8-5:30) or half day (9-1 OR 1:30-5:30), and you can still choose 2, 3, or 5 days per week for your child's schedule!
6. Progressive Philosophy! Our emergent, play-based curriculum puts children at the center of all we do! Children are seen as competent and capable, and we give them the opportunity to be the co-constructors of their learning experiences as they learn to communicate, negotiate, and collaborate together with their friends. We pay special attention to each child's social and emotional development, and the teachers incorporate pre-academic skills into the children's play, inquiries and discoveries. Curiosity is encouraged!
7. Jewish Connections for Families of ALL Backgrounds! Because we are housed at Temple Kehillat Chaim, we are able to enrich our learning about Jewish values and traditions. In addition, the synagogue community offers lots of programming for young families, including Sunday playgroups and special Shabbat programs for young children! If you don't identify as Jewish, that's ok, too - many of the children at SOWJS are not Jewish! We welcome families of all backgrounds to apply and value inclusion, diversity and belonging.
8. TKC Member Discount! All TKC members in good standing receive a 5% tuition discount for ALL of their children!
9. Passionate Local Co-Founders! Mother-Daughter Team and now members of TKC, Donna Smith Aranson and Hannah Aranson Williams, have almost 70 years of experience between them working with children and their families. Donna and Hannah have dreamed about opening a school that centers children and is inspired by the wonder of childhood for over a decade, and now their dream is a reality! SOWJS is not a franchise or a corporate center - we are a local, neighborhood preschool run by parents who understand children, for parents who want a unique experience for their children.
10. YOU!!! Our families are our partners in all we do. From play dates outside of school to volunteer opportunities in your child's classroom and beyond, we are excited to offer you a community as a part of the SOWJS family!

Our classes are filling up for the new school year, so reserve your child's spot by applying now to see for yourself why parents are choosing Seeds of Wonder Journey School AND giving us 5-star reviews on Facebook, Google and Yelp! We look forward to hearing from you soon!
